[Our Correspondent at Philadelphia has transmitted us a copy of the bill now before Congress, "to provide for organizing, arming and disciplining the Militia of the United States"—a sketch of its contents we apprehend will be acceptable to our readers.]

NEW MILITIA BILL.

THE 1st section divides the militia into classes, to be denominated the Select Corps of the Militia of the United States, and the Reserved Corps—The first is composed of all able-bodied white male citizens of the age of 18 years and under 24, and the latter of those of the age of 24 and under 40.

The 2d section points out the duty of Captains of companies as to enrolments in the Select Corps.

The 3d section requires that the Select corps be arranged into divisions, brigades, regiments and companies, as the Legislatures of each State shall direct.—Each division, brigade and regiment to be numbered, and when in actual service to take rank accordingly. Brigades to consist of 4 regiments, regiments of 2 battalions, battalions of 5 companies, and companies of 64 privates—to be officered by the respective States.

The 4th section requires that to each battalion there shall be one company of light infantry or riflemen, and to each brigade, one and not more than two companies of artillery and troops of horse—that the officers and men of the cavalry, be such respectable citizens as to be able to supply themselves with good horses and equipments—and that no person be appointed an officer of artillery, who has not had a mathematical education.

The 5th section points out the duty of the Adjutant-General, in distributing the orders of the President of the United States, and the Governor of the State, &c.

The 6th section enacts that the non-commissioned officers and privates of the said Select corps of the militia of the United States, shall be armed and equipped, and a short coat and overalls and hat of uniform, shall be provided for each, at the expence of the state to which they respectively belong, in such manner as the said state shall by law direct, but that the arms and accoutrements shall be such as is hereafter mentioned. And that the brigade inspectors, non-commissioned officers, musicians and privates, shall be compensated for their time and service (other than when they are called into actual service) at the expence of the state to which they respectively belong, in such manner as the Legislature thereof shall direct.

The 7th section requires that the officers and privates be armed in the same manner as is required by the present law. That the officers and men of the cavalry shall be supplied with swords and pistols, at the expence of the state to which they belong, and that the artillery in like manner be supplied with field pieces and hangers.

The 8th section enjoins that the Select Corps shall be trained at least 12 days in each year—and be at all times in a state of requisition—that no part of the Reserved Corps shall be called into actual service, unless in the opinion of the President, the Select Corps shall be incompetent.

The 9th section provides that the Select Corps, shall not, without the consent of the Executive of the state, be continued in actual service longer than 6 months, and with his consent, not more than 9.

The 10th section inflicts a fine on all officers of the Select Corps who shall refuse to attend when called out for training; and on those who refuse to attend at the place of rendezvous when called into actual service, and also subjects the latter to punishment by court martial.

The 11th section imposes a fine on all non-commissioned officers and privates, who neglect to attend at training, or at the place of rendezvous when called into actual service.

The 12th section directs that the regiments and battalions be furnished with state and regimental colours.

By the 13th sect. the exercise and discipline are to be same as prescribed for the troops of the United States.

By the 14th sect. officers are to take rank according to the date of their commissions.

The 15th sect. provides that the officers and men, who shall be wounded in the public service shall be provided for in the same manner as those on the military establishment.

The 16th sect. points out the duty of the brigade inspector, and requires a return to be made to the Adjutant General once in every year—It also requires the Adjutant General to make an annual return of all the militia of the state to the Governor and to the President of the United States.

From the very laughable "Tales in Verse," by GEORGE COLMAN, jun. "written in an elbow chair!" and emblematical of their usage ultimately filled "My Night Gown and Slippers," we borrow the following

LODGINGS for SINGLE GENTLEMEN; A TALE.

WHO has e'er been in London, that overgrown place,
Has seen "Lodgings to Let" stare him full in the face;
Some are good, and let dearly; while some, 'tis well known,
Are so dear, and so bad, they are best let alone.
Derry down.

Will Waddle, whose temper was studious and lonely,
Hired lodgings that took Single Gentlemen only;
But Will was so fat he appeared like a couple—
Or like two Single Gentlemen rolled into One.

He entered his rooms; and to bed he retreated,
But, all the night long, he felt fever'd and heated;
And though heavy to weigh, as a score of fat sheep,
He was not, by any means, heavy to sleep.

Next night 'twas the same;—and the next;—and the next;
He perspired like an ox; he was nervous, and vex'd;
Week pass'd after week; till by weekly succession,
His weekly condition was past all expression.

In six months, his acquaintance began much to doubt him;
For his skin, "like a lady's loose gown, hung about him;
He sent for a Doctor, and cried like a ninny,
"I have lost many pounds—make me well—there's a guinea."

The Doctor look'd wise:—"a low fever," he said:
Prescribed sudorifics,—and going to bed,
"Sudorifics in bed," exclaimed Will, "are humbugs;"
"I've enough of them there, without paying for drugs."

Will kick'd out the Doctor;—but when ill indeed,
Tho' dismissing the Doctor don't always succeed;
So, calling his host,—he said,—"Sir do you know,
"I'm the first Single Gentleman, six months ago?"

"Look'e, landlord, I think" argued Will, with a groan,
"That with honest intentions you first took me in;
"But from the first night—and to say it I'm bold—
"I have been so damn'd hot, that I'm sure I caught cold."

Quoth the landlord—"till now, I ne'er had a dispute;
"I've let lodgings ten years; I'm a Baker to boot;
"In airing your sheets, Sir, my wife is no sloven,
"And your bed is immediately—over my Oven."

"The Oven!!!" says Will—says the host, "why this passion?"
"In that excellent bed died three people of fashion."
"Why then crusty, good sir?" "Zounds!" —cries Will in a taking,
"Who wouldn't be crusty, with a half a year's baking?"

Will paid for his rooms; cried the host, with a sneer,
"Well, I see you've been going away half a year,"
"Friend we can't well agree—yet no quarrel"—Will said;
"For one man may die where another makes bread."

From the very laughable "Tales in Verse," by GEORGE COLMAN, jun. "written in an albow chair!" and emblematical of their late alluſively ſtiled "My Night Gown and Slippers," we borrow the following

LODGINGS for SINGLE GENTLEMEN: A TALE.

WHO has e'er been in London, that overgrown place,
Has ſeen "Lodgings to Let" ſtare him full in the face;
Some are good, and let dearly; while ſome, 'tis well known,
Are ſo dear, and ſo bad, they are beſt let alone.
Derry down.

Will Waddle, whoſe temper was ſtudious and lonely,
Hired lodgings that took Single Gentlemen only;
But Will was ſo fat he appeared like a ton!—
Or like two Single Gentlemen rolled into One.

He entered his rooms; and to bed he retreated,
But, all the night long, he felt fever'd and heated;
And though heavy to weigh, as a ſcore of fat ſheep,
He was not, by any means, heavy to ſleep.

Next night 'twas the ſame;—and the next;—and the next;
He perſpired like an ox; he was nervous, and vex'd;
Week paſſed after week; till by weekly ſucceſſion,
His weekly condition was paſt all expreſſion,

In ſix months, his acquaintance began much to doubt him;
For his ſkin, "like a lady's looſe gown, hung about him;
He ſent for a Doctor, and cried like a ninny,
"I have loſt many pounds—make me well—there's a guinea."

The Doctor look'd wiſe—"a ſlow fever," he ſaid:
Preſcribed ſudorifics,—and going to bed,
"Sudorifics in bed," exclaimed Will, "are humbugs;"
"I've enough of them there, without paying for drugs."

Will kick'd out the Doctor;—but when ill indeed,
E'en diſmiſſing the Doctor don't always ſucceed;
So, calling his hoſt,—he ſaid,—"Sir do you know,
"I'm the firſt Single Gentleman, ſix months ago?

"Look'e, landlord, I think" argued Will, with a grin,
"That with honeſt intentions you firſt took me in;
"But from the firſt night—and to ſay it I'm bold—
"I have been ſo damn'd hot, that I'm ſure I caught cold."

Quoth the landlord—"till now, I ne'er had a diſpute;
"I've let lodgings ten years; I'm a Baker to boot;
"In airing your ſheets, Sir, my wife is no ſloven,
"And your bed is immediately—over my Oven."

"The Oven!!!" ſays Will—ſays the hoſt, "why this paſſion?"
"In that excellent bed died three people of faſhion.
"Why in charity, good Sir?" "Zounds!"—cries Will in a taking,
"Who wouldn't be cruſty, with a half a year's baking?"

Will paid for his roomr; cried the hoſt, with a ſneer,
"Well, I ſee you've been going away half a year,"
"Friend we can't well agree—yet no quarrel"—Will ſaid;
"For one man may die where another makes bread."
